sedgwick®

Over the last few years, many of the catastrophes that have unfolded around the world have been truly devastating. Our colleagues have enormous experience supporting clients when these types of events occur.

There are few areas of our business where the strength and depth of our global resources can be more valuably applied to a client's challenges than in the field of catastrophe (CAT) adjusting services.

We have developed a robust CAT plan that will allow us to attend to our clients' needs wherever in the world they may be needed.

Experience

Local knowledge

There are few countries in the world that are immune to some form of catastrophe and in many global territories, we have colleagues living and working for clients within their local markets.

When an incident occurs, the connections that our local colleagues have are valuable in supporting their clients at their time of greatest need.

Our internal catastrophe response plans have been developed to expedite the deployment of further resources at the time of an incident to provide mutual support to our clients wherever in the world an incident takes place, reinforcing the commitment that Sedgwick brings to our valued clients everywhere.

Colleague support

Hundreds of our colleagues have experience participating in catastrophe teams. These teams need a wide variety of skills to effectively service the potential needs of our clients, with roles that go way beyond just loss adjusting.

A team typically will also require accountancy, surveying, management, administration and valuation experience and the current roster of colleagues available for deployment reflects this diverse need.

Catastrophe team participation is hard work, but it is extremely satisfying, giving those involved the ability to make a real difference to a community at a time of collective difficulty.
